

APPLICATION: 2013 Summer Foreign Language Study Award
 DUE: February 27th, 2013, 4pm, Room 319 Wheeler Hall

The English Department is happy to solicit applications for Summer Foreign Language Study for Summer 2013. As in prior years, limited funding has been earmarked for this one-time-only opportunity for students to receive aid for foreign language study. Note: Once you have received an award, you are ineligible to receive future funding.

Students are welcome to enroll in any foreign language course and funding will be commensurate with the amount that Berkeley's Summer Sessions (BSS) would charge for a like course (or, in the case of a student taking a BSS course, the published rate for Graduate Students). Priority is given to pre-orals students who have not yet fulfilled the foreign language requirement. Those closest to taking orals will receive highest priority.

Proof of enrollment is required for language study at non-UC Berkeley institutions.* For the successful applicant, direct payment to Berkeley Summer Sessions will be the default transaction for courses offered in summer 2013.

Note: Please be aware that only the intensive language workshops and upper division (100-level) courses may be applied directly toward satisfaction of the foreign language requirement. Berkeley Summer Sessions has established intensive workshop courses in all of the major languages. However, only the Greek and Latin workshops completely satisfy the foreign language requirement (provided a grade of "B" or better is earned). Enrollment in any of the other language workshops still require passing a translation exam or your completing an upper-division or graduate-level class.

I understand that I am applying for funding for Summer 2013 Foreign Language study. I am certain (relatively speaking) that I will enroll in the course described above. Once payment has been made to the Institution or to me (in the case of non-BSS courses) should my plans change and I opt out of taking this course, I will withdraw or drop the course by the refund deadline for the applicable session and any related fees are my responsibility and not that of the English Department.
